DARE TO BE THE BEST

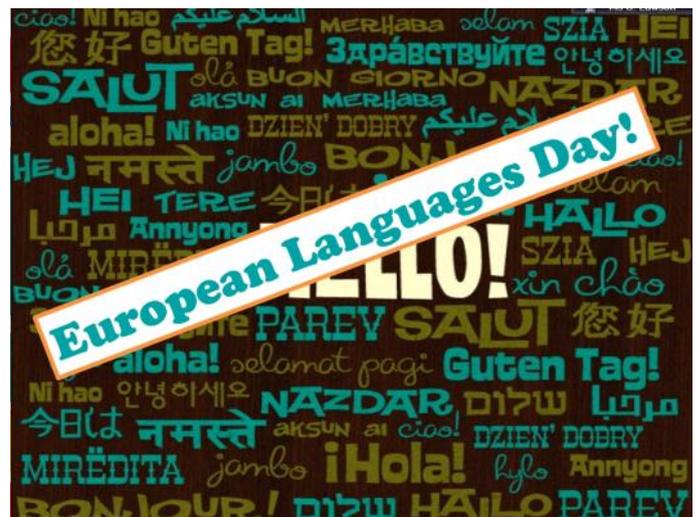

Mr Cole's history lesson egg-splodes: Year 10 learn about the impact of the atomic bomb

This week Mr. Cole's 10A History class began exploring the impact the atomic bomb has had on society. Students were given an 'atomic egg' which they had to drop from a height. Beneath the egg was a map of London. As students dropped the egg it would splatter over the map of central London. Students learnt what the impact would be for those that would be affected in those areas covered in egg. It was a really memorable and thought-provoking lesson. #History is fun! Thank you, Mr Cole!

Throughout the week, students have been asking staff what languages they speak in a bid to find out who can speak the most languages. Staff and students have been teaching each other their

THOUGHT OF THE WEEK:

Logic will take you from A to B. Imagination can take you anywhere - Albert Einstein

Welcome to our new staff!!!

My name is Ryan Whitworth and I have been appointed as an English and Drama teacher, here at Rokeby. I can also be found in the Inclusion Department working with students who are learning English as an additional language. I have been teaching for four years and I have moved from Sydney, Australia. I really enjoy reading books and seeing theatre.

My name is Jean Gnakho and I joined Rokeby School this September as a computer science teacher. Before that I used to work for the School as a cover supervisor. I enjoyed that so much that I came back for more as a computer science teacher. I particularly like the way Rokeby welcomes new students and always stands out by its sense of community.
